CELEBRATING MARANOA'S HARDWORKING TEACHERS

Member for Maranoa David Littleproud has encouraged students and schools in Maranoa to acknowledge the hard work and dedication of its teachers for World Teachers' Day.

"Teaching is one of the most important professions in the world," Mr Littleproud said.

"Teachers help shape and mould our young people into who they become. They are patient and help set up a child with the skills they'll need for a lifetime."

Mr Littleproud said many teachers across Maranoa showed their dedication by moving to regional and rural communities to teach.

"In Maranoa, we are lucky to have amazing teachers spread across 165 state, Catholic and Independent schools," he said.

"Working in regional and rural communities is incredibly rewarding for teachers who are making a start for themselves. I thank all of the teachers that have relocated to teach students in smaller classroom settings.

"Our hardworking local teachers deserve our thanks every day, but on World Teachers' Day we are reminded just how much of a contribution they make to our community."
